The name of Edward Werner has become synonomous with Concordia.

For sixteen years, this man has devoted his time, energy, and talents to the numerous facets of Christian education.

He has spent countless hours with students---prodding, counseling, advising, encouraging---and we are grateful for this.

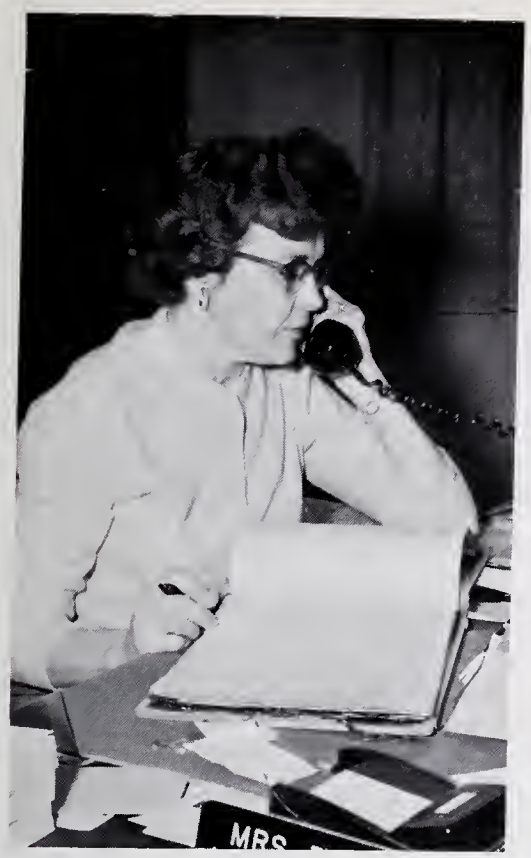
We are grateful for the invaluable assistance he has given us in choosing college and career. . .for his friendly and helpful advice. . .But, most of all, we are grateful for having had an understanding man always at our side---a man who cared.

The Administration

"We dedicate this school year to the Glory of God."

With this sentence, Mr. Herbert F. Birkman, principal, opened the 1963-1964 school year. His able leadership has indeed helped to make the year a glorious one. His job was not easy; the change from one school to another was certainly an immense task. However, now that the year is finished, we can look back on it with pride and reflect on our principal's excellent job of administrating.

A man whose friendliness is familiar to all of us is Edward Werner. As both guidance counselor and assistant principal, he is indeed a very valuable person to Concordia. Without his constant help and understanding, the year would have certainly lacked some of its glory.



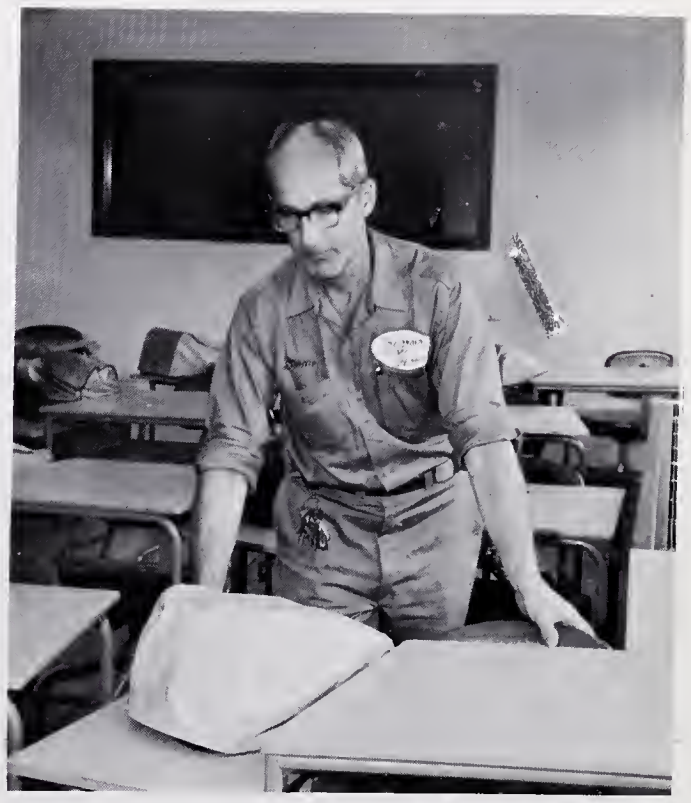
Mrs. Roemke answers the telephone for Mr. Birkman.

Mrs. Masenthin helps keep the books in order.

And Its Helpers

Concordia could not get along without the aid of the office workers, the cafeteria workers, and the custodians. They can be seen at various times of the day either answering the telephone; keeping account of the books; preparing and serving hot, noon lunches; or keeping the school dustfree and in top condition. The effort that they put forth is far-reaching and is much appreciated by the students.

The cafeteria workers are left to right: Mrs. A. Borchelt, Mrs. G. Polloni, Mrs. A. Sommer, Mrs. G. Grepke, Mrs. A. Trier, Mrs. L. Hall, and Mrs. L. Hartman.



The rooms are kept clean and in order by Mr. D. Stein.

Perplexing religious questions are answered with the aid of a Bible and Pastar Schroeder.

Religion

Rev. Armin Oldsen, M.A., Religion I, IV.

Mr. Reuben Buls, M.A., Religion III, world history.

Rev. Philip Schroeder, B.A., B.D.
Religion I, II.

Rev. Oldsen hands out a little wisdom.

"I will teach you by the hand of God" Job 27:11.

These simple words form the cornerstone of Concordia Lutheran High School. Around them, our school lives are built; every class and activity stem from this passage.

And what a beautiful and significant passage it is. For at Concordia, Christians are instructing Christians-always under the guiding hand of God. Religion, therefore, is not merely a class that meets a few times a week; it is a part of every class. It is the very reason for the existence of our school. It is Concordia.

Students desiring advice or just a friendly talk find the doors of the faculty always open, as Ann Scheumann discovers.

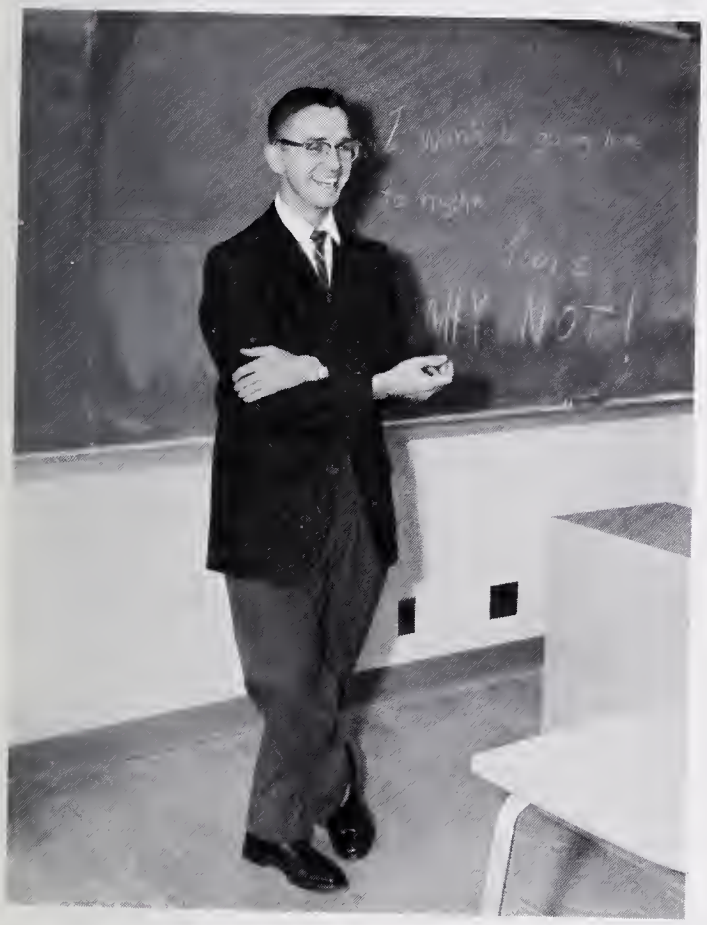
Semicolons and Salinger

Mrs. Helen Knoblauch, B.S., English II.

Mr. Kurt Jordan, M.A., English IV, Business English, journalism.

Mrs. Celia Haller, B. S., English I

Mr. Ray Halm, B.S., English I, II



Mr. William Ihssen, M.A., English III, journalism.

English is basically referred to as the language of America. At Concordia more than just the basics are delved into. All four years revolve around literature and correct grammatical uses. Reading, 'Riting, and Research are the three "R's" of the English department.

Liz Hartman explains the proper alignment of a typed business letter.

Pallets and Picasso

Larry Hughes brings a tauch af Greenwich Village ta Cancardia.

Mr. John Sturmfels, M.A., Art I, II, Art appreciatian, warld history.

Since, at least in theory, man today has more leisure time than ever before, more emphasis is being placed on culture. Concordia's cultural unit, the art department, again offers Art I and II and art appreciation. The art courses are designed to teach the students to use the techniques of art. They learn to express their feelings and ideas effectively through their projects. Art appreciation, a study of art as an enrichment to life, helps the student to develop culturally. This course covers the evolution of art from past civilizations to the art of 1964.

Karen Lupke, Lynn Imler and Linda Daseler experiment with the art af sculpture.

Mr. Charles Henke, B.S., Choir I and II, music appreciation, speech.

Violins and Verdi

Mr. Ray Sievert, B.A., Band, orchestra, general math.

True culture involves more than one phase. This year a new course, music appreciation, has been added to help Concordians develop their cultural tastes. The theory of this course is that an introduction to fine music will stimulate young people's appreciation. The students learn the progression of music from the simplest forms to the more complex musical works known today.

Mr. Glenn Parrish, B.S., Typing I, personal typing, boy's physical education, business math.

Mrs. Norma Kettler, Typing I, personal typing.

Just as the world of business is annually growing, so is the department of business at Concordia growing. This year the business department occupies the major part of second floor. In keeping with the expanded facilities, two courses, personal typing, and secretarial pool, have been added. Business courses are designed to aid either the college-bound student or the aspiring secretary.

Mr. Lester Baack, M.A., Physical geography, warld geography, geography af the Americas, economics.

Mr. Jack Massucci, M.S., U.S. history, health and safety.

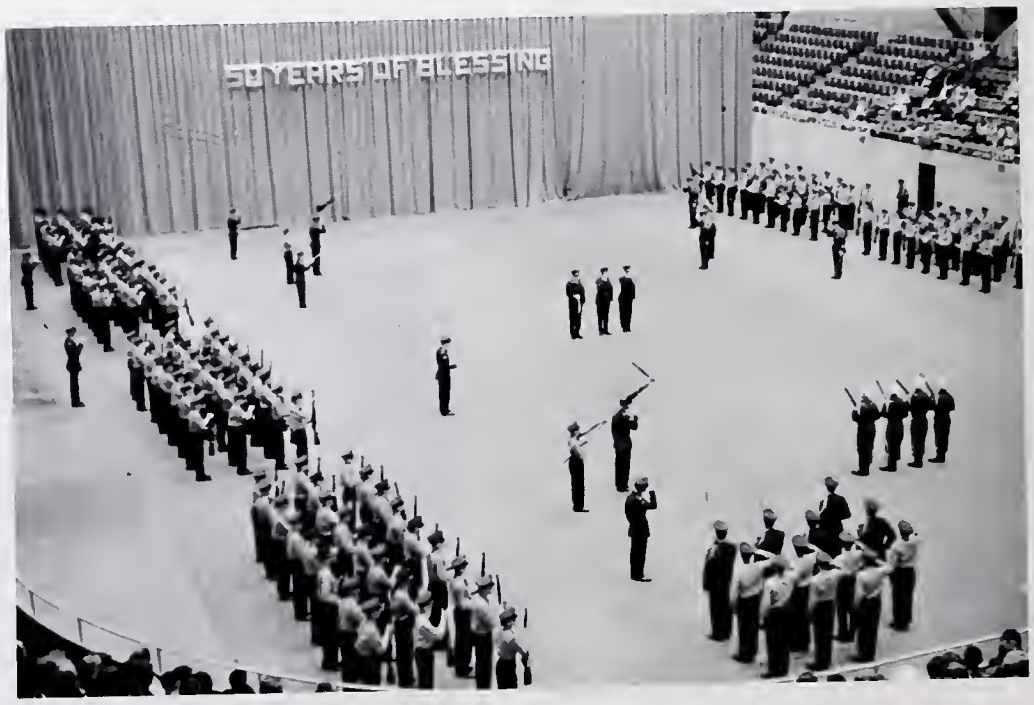
In this shrinking world, man is involved more and more with society. The courses of the Social Studies Department are planned with this thought in mind. They help to give us an understanding of the history, workings, and problems of both society and our surroundings. New insights into the art and science of human relations are developed as we prepare to fulfill our duties as future citizens.

Ronnie Gaze shares the secrets of Mr. Massucci's little black book.

Col John Von Oosten, Prof. of military science, Militory I, II, III, IV.

Drill and Discipline

At times the sea of uniforms in halls and classrooms makes school seem like a co-ed military academy. This is due to the presence of the NDCC program at Concordia. The purpose of the program is to provide military training which will benefit both the student and his country.



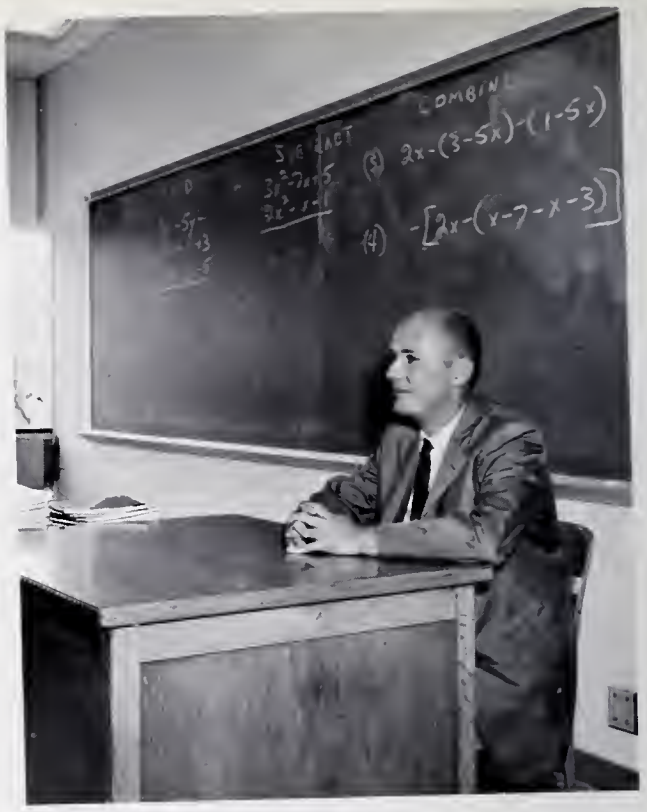
Companies stand ot ottention at the military tournoment.

Frosh in military study drill, ceremonies, and military courtesy.

Orderliness, discipline, leadership, patriotism, and a high sense of honor are the objectives of the department. The benefits include self-confidence, development of abilities, respect for authority, and growth of Christian values and responsibilities. In addition, one year college ROTC credit is awarded to all cadets completing the high school military program.

The snap squad demonstrates various shooting tactics at the military tournament.

Fractions and Formulas

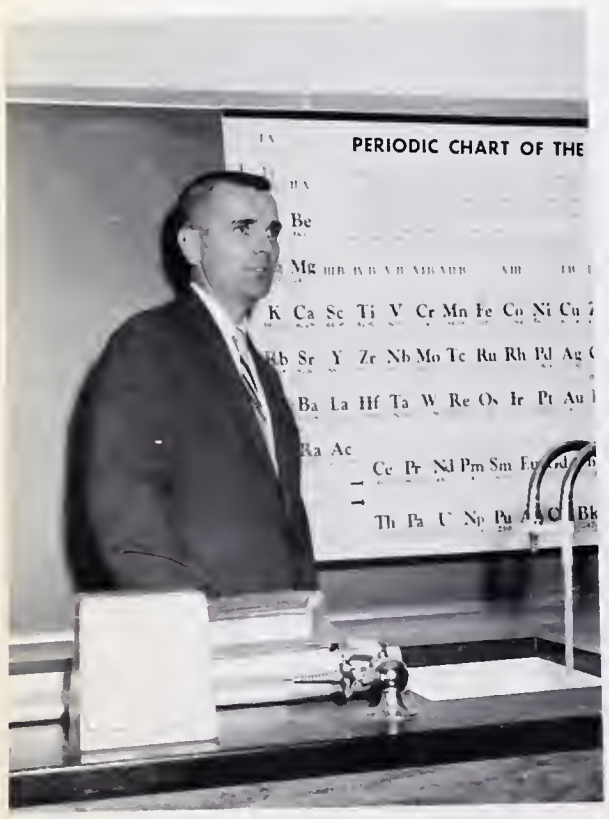


Mr. Donald Reinking, B.S., plane geometry, Algebra II.

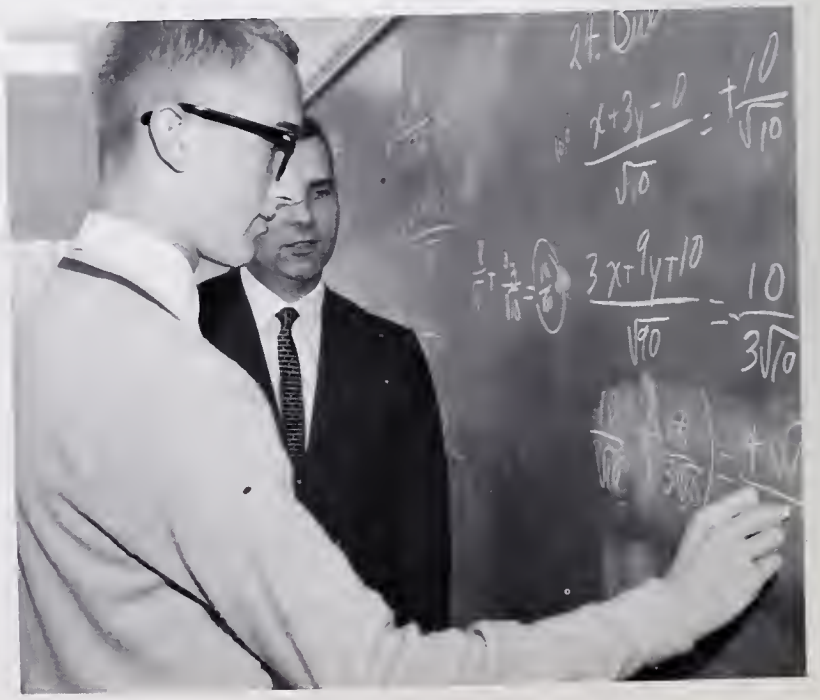
Mr. Richard Rick, B.S., Algebra I.

Since mathematics is obviously an important facet of most modern occupations, its importance at Concordia has been up-graded. Concordia has a varied but complete math program. It consists of general math, Algebra I, and plane geometry as a general basis. More advanced students are offered Algebra II, trigonometry, analytic geometry, and college algebra.

Mr. Charles Dockweiler, M.A., Analytic geometry, trigonometry, chemistry I, II, college algebra, plane geometry.



Man of the future, Dave Bulmahn, struggles with advanced mathematical problems.



Mr. Jon Anderson, B.S., Chemistry I, Physics.

Atoms and Amoeba

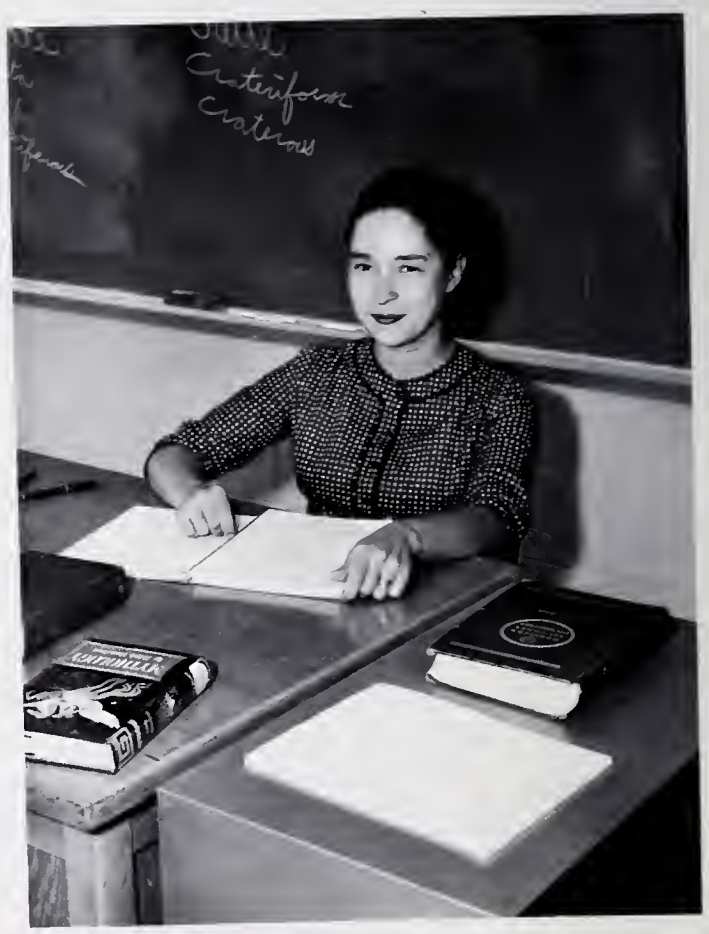
In recent years, scientific knowledge has increased remarkably. Terms like DNA, isotope, and 7 G's were never taught to our parents but are commonly used now. To keep up with science's ever-widening horizons, Concordia students are offered detailed and up-to-date scientific courses.

Mr. Ray Huebschman, B.S., Biology, world geography.

Theresa Schneider and Mike Elmore, Chemistry I students, are careful to be exact in setting up an experiment.

Conversation and Conjugation

Mr. Eugene Falkenstern, B.A., German I, II.



Mrs. Shirley Miller, A.B., Latin I, II, III, IV.

"Insula est longa" and "Sprechen Sie Deutsch?" are phrases often heard in the domain of the Language Department. The learning of a foreign language enables students to express themselves in foreign tongues and also to develop the basic principles of our language. Concordians may take a two year course in German or a four year course in Latin -- the third and fourth years emphasizing translation.

Displays in the Latin room are not only colorful, but informative.

Mrs. Buelah Meyer, B.S., M.S., Library.

Ever read Youngblood Hawks? Need information for a civics report? Then go to Concordia's library. A very necessary facility, the library contains over five thousand books which are always available to students. These books provide students with the material needed for school work, such as term papers or book reports. Student assistants aid the librarian in checking out, numbering, and shelving books.

Planning and Precision

The Industrial Arts Department was subject to a bonus this year as it moved into new and better-equipped facilities. Students in this course learn both to set their ideas on paper and to transform these ideas into finished products. They also learn how to operate different types of machinery. This supplies them with a thorough background and a sound understanding of industry.

Mr. Harold Panning, M.A., Industrial Arts I, II, Shop II.

Mr. Robert Peterson, B.S., Physical education I, II, IV, world history, sociology.

Mrs. A. Retrum, B.S., Physical education I, II, G.A.A.

In keeping with the president's physical fitness program, Concordia this year offers a more complete course in physical education. Two new features of the program are the gym and the extension of the girl's classes to third and fourth year students. As in previous years, physical education is required for all sophomore and freshmen girls and all boys not taking military.

Activities. . . . Students Use What Little Leisure Time They Have

Those elected to the Student Council are responsible for voicing the opinions of the student body.

Student Council Speaks For Students

Any student who wishes to officially present his gripes does so through the Student Council. Because this organization is so vital to the operation of any good school, it is important that it is run properly.

At Concordia, the Council not only makes certain that the views of the student body are expressed, but it also engages in many other activities. Paper drives are held, dances sponsored, rules contested, and orphan children adopted. Mr. Reuben Buls is the advisor to the Council.

Officers of the Student Council are, seated: Mary Etzold, secretary, Phil Amt, treasurer. Standing: Bill Burhop, vice-president, Stan Wissman, president.

Every Christmas, each homeroom adopts a needy family with the aid of the Christmas Bureau. Above are members of the Student Council carrying the donated gifts.

Statistics Show. . .Girls Smarter Than Boys

Each year, seniors composing the top 15% of their class become members of the National Honor Society. This year twenty-four students were awarded this honor at the first assembly in our new gym.

Four N.H.S. members were also semi-finalists in the National Merit Tests. They are Ann Middaugh, Susan Maki, Susan Koehlinger, and Steve Beaver.

Gamma Rho Delta Sponsors Culture

For those with that extra plus in English, there is Gamma Rho Delta, the honorary literary society. Students selected to this club engage in discussions, attend lectures, and see plays — all under the guidance and supervision of the English teachers. In order to stimulate the student body's cultural tastes, G.R.D. members this year took charge of one of the assemblies, and proved themselves, as usual, a talented group.

Those elected to serve G.R.D. members are, l. to r.: Sue Maki, secretary; Steve Beaver, president; Dick Klotz, treasurer; and Ann Middaugh, vice president.

Liz Etzold, Secretary-Treasurer of the Junior Red Cross; President Roberta Otto; and Vice-President Chris Albers get down to brass tacks.

J.R.C. Serves The Community

The goal of Junior Red Cross is service, and at Concordia members well meet their goal. Some of this group's activities are distributing gifts and favors to hospital patients and visiting residents of the Old People's Home and the Children's Home. Interested participators may also work at the chapter house of the National Red Cross.

Lu-Hi Voice Editorials Spark Controversy

Students reading the Lu-Hi Voice this year were undoubtedly impressed by the spirit the paper projected. Although a complete overhaul was not attempted, some changes were made, all for the better. Editorials expressing definite views on school life added to the interest of the paper, as did the bits of wit scattered throughout.

Editor Susie Koehlinger and Mr. Kurt Jordan, faculty advisor, iron out difficulties.

Industrious Lu-Hi staff always works to meet that deadline.

Getting the facts straight is one of a reporter's many jobs, as Doris Denninger learns when interviewing Mrs. Knoblauch.

As with all publications, the Lu-Hi Voice has a staff of hard, behind-the-scenes workers who keep the paper running smoothly, as well as a group of capable reporters. The combined work of these students results in the distribution of the paper every three weeks and makes for effective and complete coverage of all school events.

The reporters are, seated: Bonnie Gerke, Doris Denninger, Joan Danneman, Judy Brockman, Sandy Amstutz, Donna Buesching. Standing: Bev Birkman, Sue Sprunger, Pam Rahdert, Dianne Shrubsall, Faye Menking, David Lindquist, Tom Lamson.

Military In Successful 57th Year

Concordia's proud tradition-her Cadets!

Concordia's unique feature, the Military Department, provides Cadets with a basis of leadership and discipline. Under the guidance of Lt. Colonel John Van Oosten, the boys are trained in marching manuevers, weapon handling, and military instruction. Yearly results of the R.O.T.C. program are presented at Federal Inspection and the Military Tournament.

LUMINARIAN Sees Best Year Ever

Undoubtedly, 1964 was a good year for Concordia. So was it for the LUMINARIAN. For the first time, the editor did not bear the burden alone; a staff of five helpers was added. The excitement of a new school also contributed to the LUMINARIAN'S new look. Anyone who reads this book with any degree of care will certainly notice the change. It did not come about easily; many headaches and heartaches were involved, but, in the end we know that it was worth it. The result is not merely a yearbook. It is a LUMINARIAN.

Concordia's Choir And Blazers And Just Folk Trio (Yeah! Yeah! Yeah!)

Mr. Charles Henke, director of Concordia's choir and the Blazers, has good reason to be proud of his work. These popular groups provide welcome entertainment at concerts and pep sessions, and inspiration at our chapel services.

The Just Folk Trio-Dean Stinsmuehlen, Mark Schnabel, and Stan Lenz- give it everything they've got.

Librarians Have Record Year; Scholars Go Latin

Latin enthusiasts have ample opportunity to explore their favorite hobby in the Latin Club, led by Mrs. Shirley Miller. This group's activities vary. One example is a meeting devoted to a discussion of Roman gods.

Standing: Mike Elmore, props; Karen Runkel, publicity; and Marcia Van Bryck, props.

Since man began, there have been actors. Those at Concordia with a little bit of ham in them can join the Drama Club and try out for the various productions. Mr. John Sturmfels, a New York theatre-goer himself, is the club advisor and director of all the plays.

This year, those who attended the productions saw WHAT A LIFE!, a comedy about the misadventures of Henry, a confused school boy; THE CURIOUS SAVAGE, an "insane" three-act comedy; and a sparkling senior musical. Those who didn't attend the productions certainly missed a lot, both in fine acting and in fine directing.

Henry, played by Mike Smith, has more than his share of troubles, both with girlfriend Barbara, played by Colleen Bercot, and principal Mr. Bradley, played by Mark Knoblauch.

Concordia's New Look. . .Bulging Muscles

Dan Buchan builds stomach muscles.

In keeping with the increased emphasis placed on physical fitness in the nation's schools, Concordia introduced a new activity, the physical fitness program, during the winter months. The program included weight lifting, isometrics, power exercises, running and wrestling. Over one hundred boys participated in five groups under the guidance of coaches William Koch, Jon Anderson, Ray Halm, Robert Peterson and William Ihssen.

Chapel Club Serves Students, Faculty In Worship

Our beautiful, long-awaited chapel is an illustration of the part we hope God plays in the lives of Concordia students and faculty. Through our daily services, Pastor Oldsen and Pastor Schroeder have succeeded in making our worship both meaningful and enjoyable. Without the efforts of those in the Chapel Club, who have served as ushers and have helped to keep the chapel in order, our services would not have been as complete as they were.

Cross country, a sport which requires strength and endurance, is under the direction of Coach Reinking. The team runs a course of two miles over rough terrain at each meet. The fact that thirty-five boys went out for cross country this year shows a growing interest in the sport in comparison with previous years. Concordia sported a balance of good runners. Coach Reinking commented, "The team has shown much improvement since last year. Next year we should have a good start since we will lose only two runners."

Finishing with an outstanding record of 9-0 for the regular season, Concordia went on to place third in the conference and sixth in the sectional meet.

The reserves, with two years down and two to go, are ready for varsity competition. This year's team was groomed by Coach Glen Parrish. The reserves showed fine spirit and much hard play. Occasional lapses in defense resulted in the team's 1-6 record which did not reflect the potential that these players will add to next year's Cadet roster.

The freshmen made their debut in the Concordia athletic scene by participating in freshmen football. They received instructions and guidance from their "leaders," Coaches Ray Halm and Jon Anderson. In spite of their 1-3-1 record, the experience gained will add to our reserve squad next year.

Top: D.Saffen, R. Stelze, S. Krukeberg, T. Breininger, L. Sweat, J. Grossman, B. Emkow, S. Romming, B. Mohlock, D. Buchanan, D. Confield, B. Messman, G. Tyson, S. Dobbins, K. Bredemeyer, M. Schmidt, K. Smith, J. Gerken.

Strength In Reserves, Frosh

Before each varsity game, the reserves offer to Cadet fans an exciting forty-five minutes of basketball. These forty-five minutes, plus the hours spent in practice, provide them with the experience and skill they will need to play on the varsity squad next year. Under the leadership of Coach Jack Massucci, the reserves have enjoyed a fair season and look forward eagerly to next year.

This year, Concordia experimented with a new arrangement of the freshmen team. The young aspirants to the art of basketball were divided into two teams by coaches Don Reinking and Richard Rick. By developing their talents under supervision, the boys gain more understanding of the game. Performing well for their supporters, they are ready for a crack at the reserve squad next year.

Athletes Keep Active Year-Round Through Spring Sports

The art of hurdling is demonstrated by Jon Walda.

During the spring Concordia offers to its cadets four sports. Track, tennis, baseball and golf involve in excess of one hundred participants. Coach Koch expects a good year in track with thirteen returning lettermen. Prospects for baseball and golf under coaches Massucci and Parrish are also good. Coach Reinking, who has had winning teams for the last four years, will be rebuilding a tennis team, hit hard by last year's graduation.

The great American pastime.

A Komet enthusiast. . . Compact convertibles make for good times. . . Cool guy.

Senior class leaders: Tom Baack, vice president; Norma Seddlemeyer, secretary; Tom Steinhauser, president; and Russ Wiegman, treasurer.

More Senior Personalities

Personable Phil Amt hands Mary Etzold, "Girl with Best Personality," a big line over the phone.

Tom Baack, "Best Boy Athlete," shows Linda Reinking, "Best Girl Athlete," another one of his trophys.

They've got the rhythm: "Best Boy and Girl Hot Footers," Marilyn Stilwell and Bruce Mueller perch on the piano. Dianne Shrubsall and Jan Walda, "Best Musicians," prepare to give it all they've got.

Underclassmen. . . . Smaller Every Year. . . . Soon
To Fill Senior Shoes

Junior class girls spark up the Christmas season with a little spirit.

Juniors

Selflessness—the one endearing quality of all juniors.

Life is Good
And long
And sweet;
And youth is the heart of life;
For it is then that the young
Set the pattern of their future.
Steven Beaver

Student Life . . . . Sometimes Long . . . . Sometimes good . . . . Sometimes Sweet

FALL - the pace quickens. . .in the new school at last. . .the crowded halls wake up everyone . . .are you sure you were authorized to post that article?. . .the first football game. . . machines and machinery everywhere. . .some of us need to get a little more sleep at night. . . certain seniors had their fun. . .Reformation has come and gone. . and so has fall.

Fall

WINTER - The midpoint . . . we've settled into the routine now . . . hot food at last in the new cafeteria . . . the snow came late, but with a vengence . . . "Hoosier Hysteria" is back again . . . the advent of Christmas brought various joys: decorations, serenading by the choir, the Crystal Ball, vacation . . . and much spiritual reflection . . . we won the Holiday Tourney, thanks (?) to the senior boys' enthusiastic yelling . . . our new buildings were officially dedicated . . . grade time came 'round again . . . and Time marched on.
